• Rhode mental health system has a clear visible structure system of care with clearly defined and accessible entry points and identification of responsibility.

• The mental health system is divided into seven catchment areas and one Community Mental Health Organization (CMHO) is directly responsible for the entry of consumers into the system and for referral of consumers within the system. Each CMHO provides emergency, general outpatient, and community support services.

• Also two smaller specialty licensed Behavioral Healthcare Organizations provide intensive Assertive Community and Residential Treatment to a total of approximately 275 consumers.
Emergency Services is an immediate response by mental health professionals 24 hours per day, 7 days per week, for anyone experiencing a psychiatric emergency.

- Services include, psychiatric assessment, crisis intervention, medication, short-term counseling, referral, face-to-face assessment by a qualified mental health professional, case management and admission to an inpatient unit when necessary.

- Many CMHC emergency services have become more visible by negotiating contracts with local hospitals to provide on-site emergency assessments. This enables consumers to be referred to local CMHC after being evaluated.
• General Outpatient (GOP) Services are provided for consumers suffering from a degree of mental illness or emotional distress adversely affecting their level of functioning but not severe or long lasting enough to be disabling.

• Community Support Service (CSP) is the provision of care to seriously mentally ill adults residing in the community. The provision of services to severely mentally ill adults is a federally mandated, state mental health priority.

RI Consumer System of Care:

- Initiated in April 2009 the model focuses on allowing CSP consumers to receive and have access to the menu of services provided by a licensed RI Behavioral Healthcare Provider. Three Community Mental Health Centers were selected to initiate this model and two more are being phased in for September 1, 2009. By January 2010, all of the providers will transition to this system of care.

- This model directly correlates to the level of care language in the Global Waiver. It has three levels of care, Recovery and Prevention Services (lowest level), High Level of Care and Highest Intensity Community Specialty Services. 15-20% of the consumers in the Recovery and Prevention level, 45-50% in the High Level of Care and 35% are in the Highest Intensity Community Specialty Services.
The levels of care replace the existing ACT teams, the fidelity to ACT, and care based on number of hours served to obtain a per diem.

- The basic principle of the model is that consumers can receive the care they need without changing teams or providers.

- The model implements principles of several evidence based practices of Assertive Community Treatment, Individual Placement and Support, Co-Ocurring Integrated Treatment, Illness Management and Recovery and Family Psychoeducation.
• The provider has the autonomy to provide treatment based on the services the consumer needs and not on the number of hours needed to obtain a per diem rate.

• The model is driven by consumer need and not financial reimbursement.

• Specialty services such as employment and substance abuse counseling have specific outcome measures that are being monitored. For example, 60% of the CSP consumers are to be active with an employment specialist consistent with competency and training described in the RI Rules and Regulations for the Licensing of Behavioral Health Organizations.
